Boycottage de la cafétéria

par Yves Côté

Pour protester contre le refus de Rill Food d'améliorer la qualité des services de restauration, notre association étudiante a décidé de démontrer l'insatisfaction des étudiants en organisant un boycott de la cafétéria le mercredi 13 février prochain.

Le mécontentement, qui persiste depuis un bon moment chez la clientèle étudiante au sujet des services de restauration a atteint son paroxysme lorsque l'Ombudsman Miller a remis sa démission à Normand Crandles le 29 janvier dernier pour protester contre la situation actuelle.

Après avoir remis sa démission, ce qui a fait beaucoup de bruit à la direction de l'Université York, M. Miller a reçu de nombreuses promesses de Crandles, lui faisant part de son intention de régler, en collaboration avec Warren Rill, les nombreux problèmes qui touchent les étudiants. En retour, M. Crandles a demandé à M. Miller de revenir sur sa décision de démissionner afin de l'aider à résoudre les problèmes et de continuer à servir de lien entre les étudiants, l'Université et Rill Food.

Ainsi, le mercredi 6 février dernier, une rencontre de 3 heures a eu lieu entre M. Miller, M. Crandles et Rill dans le but de remédier à la situation qui fait l'objet des plaintes. A la fin de la rencontre, une solution était trouvée à tous les points majeurs du litige et Warren Rill en promettait l'application dans un délai d'une semaine.

En ce qui concerne le fait que les services à la cafétéria sont unilingues, Rill a promis de faire venir le traducteur officiel de l'Université York afin que tous les tableaux et toutes les annonces soient dans les deux langues officielles.

Après leur rencontre de mercredi soir dernier, le trio Miller, Crandles et Rill est allé rencontrer notre association étudiante afin de leur faire part des décisions prises et de répondre aux questions de l'association qui nous représente.

Il semble donc, qu'en dépit des accords auxquels on soit parvenu et dont Miller se dit très satisfait et malgré la rencontre avec l'A.E.C.G., que le boycott aura quand même lieu à la date prévue. Un boycott qui symbolisera le mécontentement général des étudiants, un boycott qui servira d'avertissement à Warren Rill!

Boycott to go full speed ahead

by P.G. McAleer

The Glendon college student union has decided to go full speed ahead with a boycott of Rill food services on Wednesday Feb. 13th, despite promises to rectify existing problems.

In a confrontation on February 6th, the GCSU Council meeting brought together Warren Rill, Norman Crandles (food and housing services) and (still) ombudsman Henry Miller, G.C.S.U. Council members, for the first time.

At this meeting, the caterer promised the servery would be kept cleaner ensure that more bilingual signs were put up, and reduce line-ups during peak hours perhaps by establishing a coffee service in the Junior common room.

In response, Rill and Mr. Crandles pointed out that Glendon has perhaps the most modern servery of Ontario

University. As well, they noted our cafeteria was cleaned seven days a week while other York facilities were only cleaned five days a week. There is, however a feeling among GCSU Council members that action has been too long in coming and that the proposed boycott is necessary to prove that students are annoyed by the treatment they have received from the caterer.

Glendon Hosts International Conference

by Antoinette Alaimo

On Thursday January 31, 1985 Glendon hosted the International Conference on Medieval Coronations held in the memory of John Brückmann.

Professor Brückmann was a specialist in Medieval Coronations, a professor of history and chairman of the history department at Glendon. Professor Brückmann was also an alumnus of the Pontifical Institute of Medieval Studies where he was a Visiting Fellow and candidate for the Doctorate in Medieval Studies.

First Major Gathering

The conference was a three day event held at Glendon College, the Pontifical Institute and Trinity College. It marked the first major international gathering of researchers on the topic of Medieval Coronations. Twenty-five distinguished speakers from eleven countries made the special trip to Toronto to participate.

The conference had its premiere on Thursday in Glendon's own Board Senate Chamber where Principal Garigue welcomed speakers and audience alike to the special conference.

Janos Bak of the University of British Columbia then began the lectures with "Coronation Studies: Past and Future". He was then followed by speakers from the University of California, Münster, Ausburg University, University of Warsaw and Erik Fügedi of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences. Following the end of the first session there was a reception given in the Senior Common Room.

Distinguished Speakers

The second session resumed with Robert Scheller of the University of Amsterdam and ended with Anne Hedeman of the University of Illinois.

The second day of conference sessions was held at Trinity College of the University of Toronto. The central theme of the day was Coronation Ceremonies of Medieval France.

Distinguished speakers represented such universities as Harvard, Brooklyn College, City University of New York and Ecole des Hautes Etudes, Paris. The day's session ended with a reception with the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, John Black-Aird, in his suite at Queen's Park.

Round Table Discussion

The final day of conference sessions was held at the Pontifical Institute of Medieval Studies. The two central themes covered were Scandinavian and English Coronations. Again a host of international speakers from well-known universities such as Cambridge, the University of London and the University of Kiel lectured. Following the lectures a Round Table discussion

Germain's revised budget unanimously accepted

by Stefan Liale

The revised budget of the GCSU, presented by Yves Germain, Vice president of the GCSU was unanimously accepted by the other GCSU Council members on February 6th.

The "Revised Budget" presented is not the final tabulation of monies paid out to the various organizations and events for the school year of 84/85, but only a list of expenditures incurred by the GCSU up to the date of January 23, 1985.

The list of expenditures includes such things as the money paid out for the 84/85 Student Handbook ($3700), Computer Centre ($7075), photocopier ($4100), etc. Another expense is the salaries of the GCSU President, who allocated $5000 of which $3300 has been paid out to date. Other expenses are operating costs. These operating costs consists of money paid out for items such as transportation, for example the cost of a monthly TTC pass for Carole Strychuk (President of the GCSU). Also, these costs include the long distance telephone bills incurred by Council members due to business, as well as the gas bills incurred by the Director of Cultural Affairs, Rob Bradt, who travelled from the Windsor area and back twice last summer to plan orientation week.

The total expenses incurred so far totalled $61 095.09. The total amount of revenue received to date is $75 246.00. Cultural spending to date is $19705.00 while the revenue for cultural events total was $7918.72. Therefore making the total Cultural Affairs costs $11 786.28. The "cultural spending" does not include the costs incurred with the Wine and Cheese fiasco.

Other costs not included in the budget report were the "capital improvements" to the photo lab because the Physical Plant has yet to give the bills to the GCSU Council. Orientation Kits have yet to be paid for but are "evaluated" at $4 500. Germain will present to council monthly financial statements from Sept. to Jan. at the next GCSU meeting.

GCSU Says . . . . .

On Wed., Feb. 13, it's finally going to happen. We students are going to boycott Rill Foods. For one day, you can effectively express your feelings about this campus' cafeteria.

Rill's form of taxation is quite severely questionable here at Glendon. Rill has been charging sales tax incorrectly. When purchasing Rill items with cash it has frequently been found that they charge tax on each individual item, not on the final total. When listed items of $2.25 and 50¢ are taxed individually their total comes to $2.95. If the correct procedure had been taken, this total should have been $2.94. This one cent difference may sound insignificant yet think of all the pennies adding up!

Rill has formally been informed of this infraction of the law, yet the items continue to be added in this way. Because of this, and may other reasons, we, your Student Union, are encouraging a boycott of Rill Foods on the fore-mentioned date. We encourage non-resident students to take a friend living in residence home to dinner that night. To help out matters the GCSU will again hold peanut butter day. Participate and show your Glendon spirit.

SEX IS BEAUTIFUL. BUT IT SHOULDN'T INCLUDE UNPLEASANT SURPRISES.

VD is a difficult subject to discuss.

Especially between lovers.

Unfortunately, though, it isn't at all difficult to catch. Sometimes from partners who don't even suspect they have it.

No magic pill can protect you. But the commonsense condom can.

The condom has long been recognized both as a reliable contraceptive and as the only really effective way to minimize the risk of spreading venereal infection.

Because when you use a condom (however thin and sensitive) both of you are protected.

Condoms aren't hard to find or difficult to buy. In fact, they're available without prescription at drug stores everywhere. So think it over.

And keep in mind that VD is the surest way in the world to bring a beautiful relationship to an ugly end.

THE COMMONSENSE CONDOM.
BECAUSE SEX SHOULDN'T BE A WORRY.

Aux Etats-Unis : Neuf mille réfugiés en prison

par Louise Laliberte

Neuf mille réfugiés sont incarcérés dans les cachots d'un camp de concentration; 20 000 vies humaines sont sacrifiées afin de garder le peuple asservi à la dictature.

Non, ces statistiques n'illustrent pas la situation de 1945 mais bien celle de 1985. Les réfugiés haïtiens sont confinés dans des camps aux Etats-Unis alors que 20 000 âmes ont péri pour la gloire de "Baby Doc" Duvalier.

Voilà quelques "faits intéressants" qu'il nous a été possible de constater pendant la "semaine du réfugié". Celle-ci a été coordonnée par le "Refugee documentation Project" de l'Université York et a été présentée en partie à Glendon.

Les 5, 6 et 7 février derniers, la communauté glendonienne était invitée à visionner des documentaires faisant état de la situation des réfugiés à travers le monde. De plus, des conférenciers de marque ont mené le débat après chacune de ces représentations.

La qualité cinématographique était plus que satisfaisante et les thèmes abordés des plus intéressants. Le but de cet événement était de provoquer une prise de conscience collective sur les problèmes des réfugiés.

Le problème haïtien

Mercredi dernier, les organisateurs de la "semaine des réfugiés" proposaient un film et une discussion en français sur Haïti et les problèmes auxquels font face les habitants et les réfugiés haïtiens. Des conférenciers de Montréal et de New York étaient venus à Glendon pour assister à la présentation du film "Canne Amère" et animer la discussion qui a suivi.

Selon Ben Dupuy, éditeur newyorkais du journal Haiti-Progress, "Canne Amère" a présenté l'évolution socio-économique d'Haïti à travers l'interventionisme américain et l'hégémonie de la classe bourgeoise de propriétaires terriens. La vie d'un Haïtien est synonyme d'exploitation à cause non seulement des conséquences du système semi-féodal comprenant de nombreux spéculateurs --"dons" et "compradores", mais aussi de l'implantation du système capitaliste à Haïti.

Bon nombre de compagnies multinationales américaines s'établissent sur le sol haïtien, jouissant notamment d'avantages douaniers dont une exemption de taxes pour une période de 9 ans. De plus, les multinationales profitent de l'énorme réservoir d'une population ouvrière à bon marché.

Financièrement, cela représente un taux journalier de 2.64$. Cependant, un ouvrier doit dépenser .70¢ par jour pour l'autobus afin de se rendre au travail et un autre .70¢ pour le dîner distribué par la compagnie. L'abus sexuel est aussi pratique courante, sans compter que derrière l'exploitation économique, se dresse la menace politique.

Réfugiés haïtiens

C'est pourquoi, comme "Can-

La semaine des réfugiés : le problème afghan ne amère" l'indique, certains Haïtiens s'enfuient, prennent le large dans des "coquilles de noix" car pour eux, "le requin a la dent plus tendre que Duvalier". Certains d'entre eux ne survivent à la mer déchaînée que pour se faire capturer par la garde côtière américaine. Ils avaient eu l'espoir d'un avenir meilleur chez l'Oncle Sam, mais ils troquent leur misère pour un cachot ou encore pour les ghettos de New York ou de Montréal. Il y a près de New York 500 000 réfugiés haïtiens à New York et ceux de Montréal vivent dans des conditions difficiles, ils font souvent face au racisme. On se souviendra malheureusement d'une compagnie de taxis montréalaise qui refusait d'embaucher des chauffeurs haïtiens parce que leurs clients ne voulaient pas être conduits par des Noirs.

Comme la discussion nous a permis de l'apprendre, la réalité multiculturelle du Canada est différente de celle que nous présente nos gouvernements. Grâce à la semaine des réfugiés, certains d'entre nous sont un peu plus sensibilisés sur les problèmes d'Haïti et de ses réfugiés.

On se doit de féliciter les organisateurs qui ont travaillé activement depuis septembre afin de présenter cette semaine. Le seul point à déplorer est qu'en dépit de leurs efforts et d'une publicité importante, les organisateurs n'ont pas réussi à secouer l'apathie de la communauté bilingue glendonienne, les étudiants ou même les professeurs. Malheureusement notre communauté bilingue n'était représentée que par quelques-uns de ses membres.

David Collenette returns to "Mellow Glendon"

by Scott Anderson

The Honourable David Collenette, former Member of Parliament and Cabinet Minister was at Glendon recently to present a series of lectures to Canadian Studies students.

The ex-Minister of State (Multiculturalism) during the Liberal regime gave a series of lectures on the topic of "Dynamics of Policy in the Political Process: Effective Action and the Vitality of Multiculturalism in Canada." Collenette, former M.P. from 1974-1979 and 1980-1984, is fully qualified to talk on this topic due to his vast experience. He has an extensive list of governmental appointments and achievements including M.P. for York East, Minister of State, Parliamentary Secretary to the President of the Privy Council and Government House Leader, Parliamentary Secretary to the Postmaster General plus a number of committee positions.

Collenette, speaking on the subject of "Dynamics of Policy in the Political Process", provided the practical side of politics as opposed to the theoretical side. As this was largely a Canadian Studies class aimed at learning the workings of Canadian Government, Collenette, for the most part, spoke on two main themes: How Government works and Policy Development. He also added a number of anecdotes about various aspects of his life and politics which broke up the monotony of the lecture.

The speaker detailed the various responsibilities of an

M.P., describing the various caucuses, meetings, social functions and other responsibilities that dominate a politician's life. He also supplied some helpful information and words of advice to anybody contemplating a future in politics at one level or another. "The one lesson to be learned by anybody who is interested in politics is that you cannot plan your entry into politics," said Collenette. It cannot be calculated so you must seize the brass ring when it comes around because the opportunity may never come again." He further explained that it is easier for an "ordinary Canadian" to become involved in politics today because of the availability of funds provided in an elections spending act which became effective in 1979.

The events of Collenette's younger days that culminated his entry into politics reinforce his lesson on entering politics. He attended Glendon College during the late 1960's as a political science major and, while on campus, he was one of the founding members of the Glendon Liberal Club (1968) where he gained a considerable interest in politics. After graduating, he became involved in the Liberal party on a larger scale. His actual appointment to his riding of York East came by chance. The Liberal candidate, who was to run for the area, dropped out very close to election time, so Collenette decided to run as a "lark" and subsequently won. This was quite an achievement for a young man, who during the 1950's threw stink bombs into Winston Churchill's campaign office in London.

Le carnaval d'hiver

par Yves Caron

C'est le samedi 2 février, que prenait fin le plus long carnaval de l'histoire du collège Glendon. Après neuf jours d'activités carnavalesques, l'heure est aux constatations.

C'est donc du 25 janvier au 2 février, que se tenait le carnaval 1985. Echelonné sur une période de neuf jours, le carnaval aura connu un franc succès.

M. Rob Bradt, directeur des Affaires Culturelles de l'association étudiante du collège Glendon et responsable des événements du carnaval 1985, affirmait que les objectifs du carnaval étaient d'offrir un bon divertissement et d'atteindre le taux de participation le plus élevé possible.

Toujours selon le directeur des Affaires Culturelles, la participation au carnaval 1985 se compare à celle des années précédentes.

Ainsi, le carnaval se composait de 15 équipes, comptant entre 12 et 14 membres. Les équipes se sont fait la lutte pour obtenir la première place au classement final. Le carnaval 1984, avait regroupé autant d'équipes mais le nombre de participants par équipe était inférieur à cette année.

La participation aux préparatifs des différentes activités et au nettoyage des lieux a connu une plus grande popularité comparativement aux années précédentes car les équipes recevaient des points bonus pour ces activités.

Selon M. Bradt, l'événement ayant obtenu la plus haute cote d'amour de la part des participants et du public a été la soirée des Talents qui s'est déroulée à l'intérieur du théâtre le mercredi 30 janvier.

Cependant, pour certaines activités, le taux de participation a été faible en raison du nombre restreint des équipes participantes.

De même, faisait remarquer M. Bradt, le carnaval a surtout attiré l'attention des étudiants vivant en résidence.

Parfois, certaines équipes ont pris plaisir à manifester leurs désaccords quant à l'attribution des points en dépit du but premier du carnaval qui se voulait une partie de plaisir et non une course effrénée aux points.

A l'intérieur des activités, M. Bradt soutient qu'il n'y a jamais eu d'animosité entre les différentes équipes, sauf lors de la compétition de tire-au-poignet, où les participants devaient démontrer leur force physique.

Sur le plan financier, le responsable des activités prévoit un déficit d'environ 2000$, ce genre d'événement ne pouvant s'accompagner de profits.

Les règlements d'attribution des points aux différentes équipes ont causé quelques ennuis.

En effet, M. Bradt cite l'exemple de la clinique de sang, tenue au Junior Common Room le mardi 29 janvier, où certains participants qui avaient l'intention de donner du sang mais n'ont pu le faire à cause de problèmes médicaux, ont tout de même amassé des points.

De même, un grand nombre d'activités nécessitait la force et la résistance physique pour pouvoir réussir. Il faudra modifier certaines activités pour ainsi permettre à des gens et à des groupes ne possédant pas tous ces atouts d'avoir des chances équivalentes de gagner.

Enfin, le carnaval 1985 du collège Glendon, qui aura permis aux équipes suivantes: Deerhunters, Pleasure Pack et Parasites de terminer respectivement en première, deuxième et troisième place, aura aussi été selon M. Bradt, le carnaval ayant connu le plus grand succès, tant du côté de la participation en équipe que du nombre de spectateurs venus assister aux différents événements. Ce qui laisse prévoir à ce dernier, que le carnaval 1986 sera encore meilleur.

Pro Tem sera à nouveau disponible le 4 mars 1985. La date limite pour les articles est le 27 février à midi; la réunion de l'équipe aura lieu le mardi 26 février à 18h00.

Pro Tem will be back on the newstands March 4, 1985. Copy deadline is February 27th at noon. The next general staff meeting will be on Tuesday February 26th at 6:00 pm.

Medieval Coronations

sion was held by a group of speakers from Canada, America and Europe. The three-day conference ended with a Regal Banquet of salmon, roast beef, shrimp, dessert, and wine.

The purpose of the conference was to gain knowledge on the latest cutting edge of research being done on Medieval Coronation Ceremonies; its impact, rituals and changing historical content.

The conference was well attended by professors and graduate students of medieval studies, many of whom were friends and former students of Professor Brückman.

Le problème des réfugiés

La semaine des réfugiés qui s'est terminée jeudi dernier nous a permis de prendre conscience des causes qui poussent certains individus à quitter leur pays et à venir se réfugier au Canada. Bien plus, elle nous a aussi permis de constater que certains réfugiés quittent un pays où ils étaient exploités pour se retrouver dans une situation aussi avilissante et ingrate au Canada.

En effet, plusieurs réfugiés de l'Inde venus s'installer en Colombie-britannique doivent ramasser des fruits dans des conditions atroces et pour des salaires minables. Ils travaillent, hommes, femmes et enfants, de 4 h 00 le matin à 4 h 00 l'après-midi. La plupart d'entre eux touche un salaire annuel d'environ 2 500 $ et c'est pourquoi ils doivent demeurer dans des abris de fortune. Tous nos efforts internationaux pour remédier à l'exploitation de l'homme par l'homme sont louables; cependant, cette exploitation devrait d'abord s'arrêter au Canada.

Qu'est-ce qui poussent certains individus à quitter leur patrie? Certains, comme les vietnamiens, fuient le régime communiste. D'autres, comme les haïtiens, quittent un régime où Duvalier fait la pluie et le beau temps depuis 25 ans, invitant les grandes compagnies à venir exploiter son peuple. Les haïtiens quittent un pays où ils doivent travailler sans relâche pour gagner 2,69 $ par jour alors qu'un individu produit en moyenne pour 400 $ canadiens.

Que pouvons-nous faire? Selon les conférenciers de mercredi dernier, tous étaient unanimes à dire que "la solution doit venir de l'intérieur". Bien sûr, ils doivent apprécier les forces progressistes de l'extérieur mais, avant tout, le peuple haïtien doit se tenir debout pour se libérer du joug sous lequel il se trouve...

En attendant, c'est en parlant du problème et en sensibilisant le plus de gens possibles que les étudiants de Glendon participeront à la libération du peuple haïtien!

Refugee Week, which ended last Thursday, offered us insight into what causes people to leave their countries and take refuge in Canada. Furthermore Refugee Week also offered the chance to become aware that some refugees flee exploitation at home, only to find themselves in situations as degrading and hostile in Canada.

Indeed many refugees from India have settled in British Columbia where they must live gathering fruit under dreadful conditions and for miserable wages. They work, men, women and children, from 4:00 in the morning until 4:00 in the afternoon. For this they earn about $2,500 per season. Because this is all their revenue for the year, they must live in hovels. However, as praiseworthy as are all our international efforts to end the exploitation of man by his kind, we must end this first of all at home, in Canada.

What drives people to leave their homelands? Some, like the vietnamese, have fled Communism. Others, like the Haitians, have come here to escape Dictatorship. In Haiti, "Baby Doc" Duvalier ruled his people for 25 years with an iron grip and in that time he has profited from the multinationals he has invited to exploit them. The Haitians have left behind a country where they must toil without rest to earn $2.69 (CDN) each in a day, while this day's work produces an average per worker of $400.00 (CDN).

What can we do? The Refugee Week speakers were in complete agreement last Thursday: "the solution must come from within Haiti". Naturally we must consider the progressive forces from the outside, but above all Haitians must stand up on their own to free themselves from the yoke of their oppression. In the meantime, it is by talking about and awakening public opinion to the problem as much as possible that Glendon students can take their part in the liberation of Haiti!

Boycott on Wednesday

Last Wednesday night, Warren Rill appeared at the GCS U council meeting. He once again made promises to improve to food services. So what! Rill has made promises before.

The GCS U Council has made arrangements for all students who participate in the boycott. They will be serving free food and coffee this Wednesday. Off-campus students MUST participate in the boycott. That is who Rill makes his profits from. Bring your lunch that day just do NOT buy it from Rill.

Crandles and Rill told council we have the most modern university servery. Big Deal! What good does that do if it is not kept clean? Are the students supposed to ignore everything else because of the discoteria?

One thing Mr. Rill, what gives you the audacity to ask for the minutes of that meeting before three weeks when students have repeatedly asked you for certain improvements since September?

All students should boycott Rill this Wednesday. Let's show him we mean business. We will not settle for promises, now only action. Let's brown bag it on Wednesday.

Mercredi soir dernier, Warren Rill assistait à la réunion du conseil de l'AECG. Encore une fois, il a promis d'améliorer les services d'alimentation. Ça nous en fait une belle jambe! Rill a déjà promis bien des choses.

Le conseil de l'AECG a pris des dispositions pour tous les étudiants qui participent à ce boycottage. Du café et de la nourriture seront servis gratuitement ce mercredi. Les étudiants ne résidant pas sur le campus doivent participer à ce boycottage. C'est grâce à eux que Rill fait ses profits. Apportez votre lunch ce jour-là, ne l'achetez absolument pas de Rill. Crandles et Rill ont dit au conseil que nous avons les aménagements les plus modernes de l'université. Belle affaire! Ça nous donne quoi si ils ne sont pas gardés propres? Est-ce que les étudiants devraient fermer les yeux sur tout le reste à cause de la discoteria?

Question M. Rill, qu'est-ce qui vous donne l'audace de demander le procès-verbal de cette réunion avant trois semaines alors que les étudiants vous ont demandé à plusieurs reprises d'apporter des améliorations depuis le mois de septembre?

Tous les étudiants devraient boycotter Rill ce mercredi-ci. Montrons-lui que nous sommes sérieux. Nous ne nous contenterons plus de promesses, seulement des actions.

Apportons notre lunch mercredi.

Dear Sir:

What happened during Carnival Week? It seemed everywhere I turned there were changes in the rules, few events starting on time and misinformation flowing from everywhere. I would just like to state a few examples: at arm wrestling, team members were ready to weigh in at 11:00 as scheduled, however weigh-in did not begin until 12:00 due to lack of preparation by the organizers. Also, the weight categories had been established in the book of rules where all could see and understand them. Then suddenly after 3 teams had weighed in, the women's weight categories were switched from 120 and under to 125 and under. I

La Politique Mulroney : Un changement d'orientation

par Marcel Vaillancourt

La révolution Mulroney s'apprête à ébranler les fondations qu'ont construites les gouvernements libéraux au cours des derniers vingt ans.

La nature de cette révolution sera dévoilée lors des événements suivants: premièrement, une conférence des ministres qui traitera de l'économie aura lieu les 14 et 15 février à Regina. On compte parmi les points saillants des pourparlers, l'amélioration de l'accès au marché américain pour les produits canadiens.

Deuxièmement, un mois plus tard à Ottawa, le 22 mars, ces mêmes préoccupations seront adressées lors de la Conférence économique nationale. On y retrouvera cent quarante représentants provenant du monde des affaires, des syndicats, des groupes de consommateurs, des femmes et du gouvernement.

Troisièmement, suite à cette campagne de relation publique sans précédent, le ministre des finances Michael Wilson, dévoilera à la mi-avril l'ordre du jour du gouvernement. On prévoit que son budget proposera des changements significatifs au système de taxation et aux politiques commerciales.

Le libre-échange

Suite à la publication d'un document de travail par le ministre de l'échange international James Kelleher, le gouvernement Mulroney vient de relancer le débat sur le libre-échange avec les Etats-Unis.

Le document de Kelleher suggère fortement qu'Ottawa devrait adopter le libre-échange complet de préférence au libre-échange sectoriel. Par exemple, il y a libre-échange dans le secteur des pièces pour automobiles; c'est-à-dire, aucun tarif douanier est imposé sur l'exportation ou l'importation des pièces.

Le débat sur le libre échange fait partie de la relation que nous entretenons avec les Etats-Unis, et ce depuis le Traité de Réciprocité de 1854.

Présentement, les trois-quarts de nos exportations aux Etats-Unis ne comportent aucun tarif. Les tarifs sur une partie de ce qui reste seront réduits à moins de cinq pour cent. Environ soixante dix pour cent des importations américaines entrent au pays sans tarif.

Un facteur relativement nouveau aujourd'hui est la compétition provenant des pays en voie de développement. Ceci préoccupe les manufacturiers au Canada et aux Etats-Unis. Ces pays du Tiers-Monde veulent que les Etats-Unis réduisent les tarifs sur leurs produits afin qu'ils puissent se procurer des devises étrangères (surtout des dollars américains).

Selon certains observateurs, il est important d'accroître l'accès au marché des Etats-Unis dès maintenant pendant que les Américains maintiennent des barrières tarifaires avec les pays en voie de développement.

Protectionnisme

L'augmentation du sentiment protectionniste aux Etats-Unis, causée par leur position déficitaire dans l'échange international freine l'accès au marché américain. Le déficit pourrait atteindre le cap des cent milliards de dollars (E.U.). Les hommes d'affaires canadiens prétendent que 1985 est l'année critique pour entamer des négociations visant à accroître l'accessibilité au marché américain. Autrement, le libre-échange à tous niveaux risque de ne pas se réaliser.

Afin d'inciter le gouvernement à agir, plusieurs hommes d'affaires se sont regroupés pour former la Commission sur les relations Canada/Etats-Unis (Task Force on Canada-U.S. Trade Relations). "Nous espérons que cette commission servira de pont entre l'industrie et le gouvernement durant les négociations", affirme Keith Dixon, président de l'Association des importateurs du Canada et membre de la commission.

De son côté, James Kelleher affirme que le gouvernement veut consulter les dirigeants de l'entreprise privé avant d'entamer des négociations avec les Etats-Unis. Le gouvernement veut simplement reprendre les pourparlers au sujet du libre échange sectoriel.

Cette question dépasse la ligue de parti puisqu'un ancien ministre des Finances, le libéral Donald MacDonald, appuie le libre-échange. Le président de la Commission royale sur l'économie est convaincu que le Canada doit rechercher de nouvelles formes de croissance industrielle afin de suppléer au secteur traditionnel des ressources naturelles.

Pour y arriver, le marché nord-américain se doit d'être fort et de fournir l'impulsion et le pouvoir d'achat

Les conséquences

Une des conséquences d'une entente sur le libre-échange est l'intégration accrue des deux économies nationales via le mécanisme de la corporation multinationale. Par conséquent, il y aurait encore une plus grande concentration du pouvoir décisionnel aux sièges sociaux de ces compagnies, en grande majorité, situées aux Etats-Unis. De plus, la recherche et le développement s'effectueraient aux sièges sociaux américains.

C'est donc une politique économique continentaliste que propose le gouvernement Mulroney. Ce n'est pas limité à l'échange. Ce gouvernement entreprend déjà la transformation de la Foreign Investment Review Agency (FIRA), qui avait pour mandat d'examiner l'investissement direct étranger, en agence qui attire davantage cet investissement (surtout américain). Le gouvernement a l'intention d'abolir le programme énergétique national. Le message que livre Mulroney au Président Reagan et les multinationales est clair: les frontières du Canada sont ouvertes et le pays est disposé à se faire exploiter.

Il met en doute aussi le nationalisme culturel. Il a sabré dans les budgets de la Société Radio-Canada et au Conseil des Arts du Canada ce qui n'aide pas la cause. Dans le domaine de la publication, on attend avec impatience la décision du gouvernement quant à l'achat par la multinationale, Gulf and Western Industries, de la maison Prentice-Hall du New Jersey et, indirectement celle de Prentice-Hall Canada.

C'est un test culturel pour les Conservateurs qui se sont engagés à canadianiser davantage le domaine de la publication. Si le gouvernement refuse d'approuver l'achat, un groupe de cinq maisons d'édition canadiennes est prêt à faire un offre d'achat.

Des promesses

Les Conservateurs ont promis de protéger les domaines de la diffusion, la publication, l'enregistrement et le film.

Cette semaine, Ken Taylor, ambassadeur canadien en Iran pendant la crise des otages s'est rallié à un groupe d'hommes d'affaires américains. Ce groupe a pour but d'inciter le gouvernement des Etats-Unis à conclure une entente avec le Canada favorisant le libre-échange complet.

Taylor, vice-président de Nabisco Brands Inc., a révélé dans une entrevue au Toronto Star qu'il représentera le point de vue des compagnies américaines tout en faisant part de son expertise sur la scène canadienne.

Voilà que les équipes sont formées et que les pions sont placés sur l'échiquier. Ca promet d'être une partie intéressante.

Le dossier du libre-échange en est un à suivre de près en 1985!

couldn't believe it. I know one person who dropped 6 pounds to meet her weight category. All or nothing. What about the dance after comedy night? Was there supposed to be one or not? Talent Night should have been held in the Caf. Making people stand outside for 30 minutes and not allowing team members to go in until their act was on stage can only be credited to lack of organization. The rules concerning the Blood Donor Clinic are another grey area. Why did organizer Rob Bradt state that only 4 people from each team had to give blood for the team to receive full points when, as it turned out, a point was awarded for each person who gave blood. Although this rule was posted, all the last minute changes made one doubtful as to what to believe. Finally, I would like to state that my dissatisfaction lies with the organizers not the judges who did a great job in spite of the disorder and frequent hassels they had to deal with. Sincerely,

An Angry Glendon Student

To the Editor:
It's a shame that every issue in international politics leads to the same question: Are they being supported by the Soviets or the Americans? Frankly, what's the difference?

Whether it is a question of expansionism, domination, influence, or just plain greed for power and wealth; the fact remains that with each passing day it is becoming overwhelmingly clear that our leaders in politics are no longer our representatives but Machiavellians who have taken it onto themselves to bargain with the lives that put and keep them in power just so that they Machiavellians who have taken it onto themselves to bargain with the lives that put and keep them in power just so that they can satisfy their hunger for "superiority".

Why are the poor ignored? Why is half the world in chaos after so many centuries of so-called civilization?

What gives the leaders the right to destroy our planet and kill our children and crush our hopes? When will they all realize that the human race has made enough mistakes and does not want to be obliterated at the whim of a few or just one? Karim Sajan

Dear Editor:

I am afraid I have once again been obliged to correct a factual error in Pro Tem.

Under the sub-heading 'GCSU at OFS' in your page 3 article 'Faulty budget revised at Council meeting', your reporter states that 'it was two years ago that the GCSU voted to get out of OFS.' The insinuation here is that either the Council or I am guilty of doing something against the students' wishes.

In fact, this is a gross misrepresentation of what the GCSU decided two years ago. During the term of President Carl Héту (1982-83), the students were asked in a referendum whether they wished to continue paying the exorbitant OFS (Ontario Federation of Students) membership fees or whether they wished to see the money re-directed into campus services. The students voted to spend the money on campus services.

Thus, the Council stopped paying OFS membership fees and OFS, in turn, terminated GCSU's membership privileges.

This was a cause and effect situation which must be understood clearly. AT NO TIME DID GLENDON STUDENTS VOTE TO WITHDRAW FROM OFS; they voted instead to stop payment of membership fees which resulted in the cancellation of Glendon's membership.

I hope you will correct this error.

Best Wishes, yours sincerely,
Jas Ahmad,
Director of External Affairs

Feature

Glendon's Centre: The Loose Ends

Courtesy York University Archives

by Wayne Burnett

In this, the fourth and last installment of the feature, alternate sites for a student centre are provided. In addition, the question of funding will be reviewed as will the present situation concerning student centres at York. Insets provide other important information.

Growth Sites

It's no secret that there is a critical space shortage at Glendon. The fact that not one student group, other than the student government and student media, has office space is but one example. The J.C.R., cafeteria and offices at Hilliard are others.

Glendon can grow. The reader will see that the 1967 Master Plan for the Glendon Campus included many possibilities. For example, the Master Plan indicates that 'A'-Wing would be 'completed'. That is, the other side of the wing would be built.

A wing connecting the ends of 'A' and 'C' wings was envisioned. The Master Plan suggests an 'Assembly' chamber of some type. That wing usually called 'D'-Wing could include classrooms, offices and other types of facilities as well.

The University of Toronto Forestry/Botany Lab is another potential location of new buildings. In 1967, the campus planners suggested that this lab and a smaller house further west would be replaced by buildings connected to Hilliard Residence.

Wood Residence also has additions made to it. In addition, the wooded lot along Bayview would contain a building. Finally, in more recent times, many a cold Glendonite has been heard suggesting that 'B'-Wing should have a real first floor.

It's not too difficult to guess that if we had completed all of these additions and buildings, Glendon would have been able to take in a great many more students. I'm not in favour of the 'B'-Wing first floor nor the building in the wooded lot, but many of the other ideas warrant consideration.

Chedington

Perhaps I shouldn't return to this building, but a number of readers have commented on the relative isolation of Chedington. This is true, but some of the other buildings that may appear before too long should reduce this concern. For example, I estimate that 'D'-Wing would be the preferable way of beginning the expansion of the Glendon physical plant. One reason is that it would be good in establishing a 'front door' for the College.

Along with 'D'-Wing could be built the other side of 'A'-Wing. These two constructions would move a significant amount of Glendon closer to Chedington. We'd also need to remove the fence. I would suggest that one driveway be established, going by Chedington on its way to York Hall.

Finally, the old Master Plan suggests that another building would be built between Chedington and York Hall. While I don't know the purpose of this second building, it would further reduce the isolation of Chedington.

Chedington · Chedington · Chedington · Chedington · Chedington

According to the North York Historical Society, Chedington was built by Edward P. Wood, the owner of Glendon Hall when it was a "home" for his daughter and her husband. The house is a "very large revivalist" building, made half of timber and half of stone in a Tudor style. "The combination of materials was a popular tendency in the 1920's. They were apparently selected purely for visual effect with little regard to the actual necessity of a specific material suited to the purpose. The goal as pleasantness and visual delight mingled with vaguely mediaeval feelings of hearth and home. The carving on the ends of the beams supporting the mock half-timbering adds to this general character."

"Its relation to Glendon Hall is quite distinct, as the house is oriented into the property although it has its own gates on Bayview immediately adjoining the north Glendon gates. It currently functions as a private office."

"When the house was built the ravine was virtually impassible and the area extremely secluded."

Glendon Hall · Present Occupants of Glendon Hall · Present Occupants

Below are the occupants of Glendon Hall. Under "priority", I suggest how important it would be for those occupants to remain in Glendon Hall should it become the student centre. A "1" is the highest priority, a "4" the lowest.

Occupant	Priority
Second Floor
C.D. Howe	(leaving)
P. Garigue, Principal	4(note i)
Ground Floor
M. Ross, President Emeritus	(founding) note ii
Bookstore	2
Pro Tem	1
La Maison de la culture	3 (note iii)
Career and Counselling Centre	2
Health	2
Bank	2 or 3 (note iv)
Art Director	3
Basement
Café de la Terrasse (the Pub)	1
Radio Glendon	1
Pipe Room	1 or 2 (note v)

Notes:

- i) As much as it might be nice or convenient to have the Principal live on campus, the fact is that we already have the Master of Residence on campus (along with the Dons and the head of security) and space is tight. Having use of the entire second floor is imperative.
- ii) This might contradict the first note, but Dr. M. Ross is the founding President of York University and contributes to the community. On the one hand, I might argue that such a person deserves extra consideration; on the other, I could argue that he should be treated like anyone else, or at least at the same level as the Principal.
- iii) While the Maison is a part of the extra-curricular activities of the College, contributing to bilingualism and "the arts", and organized by the Dean of Students, it nevertheless is less of a service to students than one to the broader community. In addition, would we then want/have to include the Glendon Gallery?
- iv) The Toronto-Dominion Bank sub-branch is a service, but is it provided by the College? I would want it included, but there might be an argument that it is an outside body.
- v) The Pipe Room, which once had its own Board of Directors and was incorporated, now serves a vital function for theatre at Glendon. However, might it not be better consolidating all (or most) of the theatre facilities into one area? Regardless, they, like the rest of the present occupants will require some location.

Alternate Sites

While I've presented sites for Glendon's expansion, the question remains: Other than Glendon Hall and Chedington, where else could a student centre be established? There are a number of possibilities.

Any of the new additions/buildings could include a student centre. For example, the other side of 'A'-Wing could work. It might be preferable in this case to design it almost as if it were a separate entity.

The first floor of 'B'-Wing or a section of either 'D'-Wing or a building where U of T could house a student centre, of sorts. But, I can't see those locations holding a pub, for example.

Another possible location is the area marked as 'A' on the old Master Plan. This site, and the other three to follow are not suggestions from the University. I'm suggesting that a small building could be built here as a student centre. Sites 'B', 'C', and 'D' are other possibilities, though site 'C' might give the impression that the student centre is oriented towards residence students.

mediate Proposals · Immediate Proposals · Immediate Proposa

Philippe Garigue, Principal

In a draft of a recent report on the development of bilingualism at Glendon, Principal Garigue referred to Student Services under two headings. First, "basic services", such as the cafeteria, health services, as well as sport services would need to respond to increased demand.

Secondly, "extra-curricular" services for cultural and other clubs and association activities will require extra services. Garigue recommends an evaluation of the needs at a cost of $70,000.

Finally, under the "New Building" rubric, Garigue recommends that space be set aside for extra student services. □

Carole Strypchuk, President
Charles Wong, Councillor

In a report from the GCSU, written by Strypchuk and Wong, on the use of the space to be given up by C.D. Howe, the following recommendations were presented:

The GCSU office move over to Glendon Hall, with increased space, including a storage room and an inner office.

The Microcomputer Centre expand to take in the present GCSU office, with a view to becoming an essay centre (both more computers and some typewriters).

The need for a study hall for commuter students.

The allocation of three or four offices for student groups.

The report also notes that "a student population of 2,000 necessitates:

A larger J.C.R.

An expanded cafeteria, for both lunch services and dances.

Increased space for the Pub (which the Pub Board is looking into at present).

Expanded capacity and further facilities for the Theatre.

More lockers, for the convenience of commuter students.

A tuck shop and a video arcade.

The report goes on with a view to the future:

A students' centre which would house all student services (and groups) and include committee rooms, a debating room seating 100, reading room, music room, bunk rooms (to accommodate commuter students' involvement), and a multi-religious centre.

Finances

Although I haven't been able to find this week's issue of Excalibur on the Glendon Campus, it would seem that Chris Costello and his Student Centre Steering Committee (SCSC) are making strong headway. Some 70% of respondents to a survey have taken a positive stance to establishing a student centre.

At Glendon, our representative to SCSC, Wanda Wegman, reports that Glendon students have indicated that they would not use a student centre on the North Campus and therefore want to see money put aside for our campus. If this is not done, Glendon students would not be in favour of a student centre and the levy that that entails.

The question of finances is crucial. It is important for the Glendon Community to ensure that our needs are met satisfactorily. Financially, this means financial support not only from Glendon students, but also from a proportion of Atkinson students.

I would suggest that the costs of the two centres be combined and jointly financed by student fees, the University's contribution, and general governmental and corporate support. Special fundraising appeals, however, would be allowed for either centre, thus producing a little incentive towards reaching out for external fundraising.

Conclusion

Costello met with members of the Board of Governors last week and the proposal for the North Campus student centre met with enthusiasm. The SCSC will now proceed with a referendum among the students.

Glendonites must act now. We must decide what kind of facility we want, plan it, and take it to the Board, through the GCSU. The decision is ours.

Famed hooper Gene Kelly was in Toronto recently to attend the premiere of the film That's Dancing!, a dazzling anthology of the great moments in film musicals including everything from ballet, ballroom, and softshoe, to disco jazz, and breakdancing.

The showing, at $125 per ticket, was a benefit performance for the Academy of Canadian Cinema's educational and scholarship program for young artists. The premiere turned into a star-studded event as such famed personalities as Jane Fonda, Anne Bancroft, Frank Augustyn, Norman Jewison, and many other local celebrities showed up to view the historical and nostalgic compilation.

ANATOMICAL OBSOLETION

by John Bragança

Life, in the yearly scheme of things, changes so slowly that one would be encouraged to believe that it is not changing at all. But that's pig bricks. Our bodies are changing; adapting to the corresponding changes in our lifestyle.

Take for example, the tail. Once upon a time, every man, woman, and child sported a hard, vertebral protrusion extending outward and downward from just above the anal cavity. Its function was to assist in maintaining balance and for performing neat tricks like tucking it between one's legs and waving it at people for whom one had a strong dislike.

However, since then, the importance of such an appendage gradually lessened as man learned to stand erect and his amiability with his neighbours improved. Hence, its demise.

Another bodily change that is in constant occurrence is the gradual disappearance of hair from the body and head. It is of my observation-enriched opinion that more people are discovering the surprise of sudden baldness. I can count no fewer than five people of my immediate acquaintance who, still in their early twenties, are currently saving toward future hair transplants. Who knows, hair on the head, in 2000 years, may become as obscene as hair on the back is today.

Another characteristic of the human anatomy that has always perplexed me is that little gutter that extends in a southerly direction from the base of the nostrils to the median of the upper lip. After much serious consideration, I finally deduced that in primeval times, it acted as a channel for nasal excretions during the winter months. The purpose of which, of course, was to channel the mucous through the oral cavity, thereby keeping the throat moist and simultaneously providing a source of nourishment for the body since food, of course, would not be found in abundance.

Therefore, I would assume that with modern man's propensity to wipe his nose in a lateral direction — often with a finger or sleeve — and his disreliance upon his fruit de nez as a moisturizer or vitamin supplement, that gutter of which I spoke will in all probability change course, over the next few millenia, and extend from each nostril much in the same fashion as a well cultivated moustache. Otherwise, it may be abandoned all together.

Another physical feature that will likely be discarded in the very near future is the baby toe. It is anticipated that with the frequent impact that said toe often makes such immovable objects as chesterfield legs and edges of doors, it will eventually fail to be reproduced in the succeeding generations.

It is with awe that I view these refinements in the human physique. For evolution, as someone should have said, never rests.

Depuis le mois de janvier, la population étudiante de Glendon est privée de la distribution gratuite de l'Express. Contacté par téléphone, le rédacteur en chef François Bergeron, nous apprenait que le journal avait proposé à Glendon d'acheter des exemplaires du journal et de les distribuer aux étudiants.

M. Bergeron n'a pas reçu de réponse malgré son offre de vente à dix cents le numéro. "Nous tentons de limiter la circulation gratuite et d'augmenter la circulation payante", a-t-il ajouté.

Entretemps, la publication du journal continue et l'on peut se procurer des exemplaires chez Champlain, à la Maison de la Presse Internationale (Yorkville) et dans les quatre magasins Litterman dont le plus proche est à Yonge et St-Clair avenue.

Last week I had the opportunity to attend a screening of the political docudrama film "The Battle Of Chile" parts I and II showing at the Royal Ontario Museum Theatre.

The docudrama directed by Patricio Guzman, though not what you would call unbiased, is nevertheless a striking depiction of how Chile's President Allende and the working class Popular Unity party fought and eventually succumbed to the subversive influences of the right-wing Christian Democratic party (known as the bourgeois in the film) via boycotts, strikes, murder and eventually the coup d'état.

The film itself is in two parts. Part one covers the March 1973 election of a powerful Popular Unity party until the attempted coup by a faction of the right-wing sympathetic army the following June of that year.

Part two begins where part one leaves you, and continues to portray the gallant but vain attempts of the Popular Unity party and President Allende to defend their right to socialist democracy in Chile, all this before the final coup in Sept. 1973 when the fascist regime seized power killing Allende and many of his cabinet members as well as thousands of Popular Unity members.

Technically the Battle of Chile is a poorly made film with many overexposed shots and enough subtitles disappearing into the background to comprise a small essay.

Editing on the other hand was masterfully accomplished by blending political debate and intrigue with public opinion, violence and more than a little humour. There is also some fantastic footage packed into this three hours of cellulose, some of which includes the film of a cameraman who photographed his own execution in the streets of Santiago.

Considering that most of the film used to create the Battle of Chile had to be smuggled out of the country in pieces in order to later be assembled in Cuba, it's few production flaws are easily overlooked in favour of the chilling insight it provides into the deceptive realm of Third World politics.

If you are a political science student or perhaps just a person who would like to see how the United States aids the installment of fascist juntas, this movie should not be missed if you ever get the chance to see it.

The Political Thriller series will be running until February 17 featuring such films as Blow Out and Missing. Admission is 3$; 2$ for students and seniors. For more information, contact the ROM Theatre at 978-5475/4746.

Winter Carnival: The Week After

by Pierre Tremblay

Year after year, carnival after carnival there are always some individuals complaining about the rules, the point system, the events and most of all, about the organization. This year was even worse because of the final standing: two teams tied for 1st place, two teams for 4th place and two teams for 6th place. Surprisingly enough, only one team really complained to the organizing committee. No name will be mentioned but that team argued that the committee robbed them of some points that would have given them a better position in the final standing.

Once again it showed that the Winter Carnival Week, which was originally conceived to allow students and even staff members to participate in a week of fun, not-really-competitive events, became a must-win competition in the minds of some people. It must be said that with the kind of events that are offered to participants, it is hard to have a participating attitude. There is nothing wrong with the fact that it is fun to win but there is a limit. If I just look at two events some teams had definite advantages over others: arm wrestling and tug-o-war.

About arm wrestling a lot of participants complained that the weight categories were favoring heavier "stronger" participants. But, we have to say that when well organized, the arm wrestling contest attracts a lot of spectators. It is another story, however, in the case of the tug-o-war. If I base my analysis upon what happened this year, we can see that tug-o-war is a waste of time. It becomes too competitive and really favors heavy teams. This year, finalists were probably the two heaviest teams. It is simply not fair for teams that are more game oriented. Spectator wise, it was a fluke. The organizing committee should be able to come up with some events maybe less power oriented that would fit any kind of team.

The point system must be more well defined because under its present format, it doesn't favour participation. People say: "Well if we are not in the top five we will only have one point..." It is not rewarding at all. I would suggest that each team participating gets points according to their placement, should it be 20 points for 1st place down to 1 for last place; there are all kinds of ways to do it but some changes have to be made.

To conclude this, the Winter Carnival Week is a great way to escape the January and February blues and it should always be that way. However its life will be shortened if no attempts are made to make it more attractive to the whole community at Glendon, staff included, not just to the more athletic group.
