Faculty Council opens meetings

Reliable sources said:

the Glendon College Faculty Council has passed a motion which will open its public sessions to all members of the Glendon College community with provision for press coverage.

The measure, however, must first be passed by the York University Senate before it becomes effective. The motion put forward by student faculty councilor David Coop, G III at faculty council’s October 9 meeting, read “...that...All members of Glendon College are entitled to attend and participate in all meetings of faculty council with provision of minutes where cases of personal petitions, rustication, or other such personal matters are not considered. In those cases it is up to the individual involved to decide whether he wants his case discussed in private.”

AMENDMENTS DEBATED

Discussions centered on amendments to Copp’s motion which were put forward by Michael Gregory, English, and Brian Bixley, Dean of Students. Each amendment was to be added to make clear that the motion would also apply to faculty council’s closed meetings.

Copp, too, added another amendment stating that “notice of time and place of all meetings be published in the college at least 24 hours before all meetings or at the same time as members of council are notified.”

The council agreed, except to insert the words “two-thirds” before the word “majority” in one of Gregory’s amendments which said that council could put a session in executive committee if a simple majority passed a motion of closure.

H.S. Harris, Academic Dean, said that he was opposed to the admission of the press, Harris did want members of Glendon College community admitted to the public sessions but felt that the press “don’t belong in a private conclave.”

SENATE MAY REJECT IT

Harris went on to say that he “would have to vote against the whole thing” if there were not adequate provisions for the press. The motion was defeated 11-10.

All Gregory’s amendments were passed except for Copp’s amendment calling for a two-thirds majority to put a session in executive committee. It was defeated 11-10.

After handing over the chair to vice-chairman John Bruckmann, Escott Reid then opened discussion on the main motion.

Reid said that he did not think that students and other non-members of faculty council should be allowed to speak at the council meeting. It was defeated 11-3.

Harris said he expected the motion would be turned down by the Senate as being too radical and also that the Senate would turn down his motion to institute a closed session. It was defeated 11-10.

Copp and student council president Jim Park retorted that the Senate did not want to get it through. Copp and students denied that the government’s new educational standard for the Indian is still far below that of the white man, especially in the North. He denied that the government was consulting the Indians adequately, and voiced a suspicion that the government’s new ‘wonderful’ Indian Act would probably be no different in essence than before.

Nadjnawan added as an example that the government had sold ninety islands of an Indian reserve for a pittance and had not told him about it until the transaction was completed.

Most participants seemed to agree that the attitude of the Canadian public toward the Indians’ socio-economic condition was one of disinterest. Boyd admitted that whites were biased and generally misinformed.

Peters was very concerned with racial bias. He maintained that the Indians were being treated as a non-personal group instead of as a living people who are good and bad, high and low.

STUDENTS BUG BUREAUCRATS

Peters found support for his views among the audience.

While Boyd said that he visited reserves on week-ends (he has seen all the Maritime ones, and many others in Ontario and Quebec) some students were annoyed that he did not stay longer on each reserve. Nadjnawan pointed to government bureaucracy and disinterest when he told of his being unable to get rid of a troublesome civil servant that was on the reserve.

Peters accused the government of permitting too little initiative within the civil service.

Fox, Director of the Information Branch of the department tried to counter the accusations. But he merely pointed out that some responsibility must rest with the government if only so that someone can take the blame. (777)

The statistics were given - low age of death, high infant mortality rate, disgraceful housing. One student related the disgusting poverty he saw at a settlement in Manitoba this summer and asked, “Is this Canada?”

Ernest McEwen, executive director of the IEA, criticized government bureaucratic hangups as impeding his plans for Indian community development. Clare Clark, former IEA President, criticized the government for up till now not publicizing the Indian situation better.

The government men agreed (sort of) but always, looked to the future for improvement.

While government men pointed out that fifth of Canada’s people are still poor (officially). The “just society”...oh boy...

Every citizen a reporter

For the first time this week, PRO TEM carries a report of the proceedings of a Glendon College Faculty Council.

Faculty council, by the way, is Glendon’s ministrature. Composed of over 70 faculty members, and 5 student representatives, is the highest authority on academic affairs at this institution.

John Bruckmann was correct when he said that faculty council was the real executive committee of the Senate. However, it is significant that the York University Senate has never yet refused to pass any “advice” it has received from the Glendon College Faculty Council.

Some months ago, after some bitter infighting, the student representatives convinced faculty council to allow a maximum of ten observers from the Glendon College community. Press coverage was not to be permitted, however.

It was indeed fortunate, then, that PRO TEM gained access to a number of exceptionally reliable sources as we feel that it will be to each Glendon student’s advantage to keep informed of the actions of this Glendon’s most important council.

Indians attack I.A.B. officials

BY TOBY FYFE

and GRAHAM MUR

At the Indian Forum dinner last Thursday two civil servants, Eric Boyd and Bill Fox, of the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, were gently put on the spot for two hours.

Boyd, an assistant to Robert András, gave a speech which seemed to indicate that the government was interested in decentralization of the department and more contact with the Indian people.

He criticized government paternalism, advocating Indian self-management (Red Power????). He said the government is in favour of a long process of diminishing involvement. Indians are being consulted on the new Indian Act. The adult training programs and the educational system are designed to give the Indian an opportunity to choose his own way of life. He called for the Indians to run their own local governments and protect their rights.

"SAME SPEECH FOR FORTY YEARS"

Omer Peters, President of the National Indian-Lakim Association (IEA) was unsatisfied, to the delight of the audience. Brushing off Boyd’s speech as the same one used by the department of Indian Affairs for the past forty years, he and chief Wilmar Nadjnawan, Vice-President of the Ontario Union of Indians, ignored its generalities and jumped to particularities.

Peters pointed out that the educational standard for the Indian is still far below that of the white man, especially in the North. He denied that the government was consulting the Indians adequately, and voiced a suspicion that the government’s new ‘wonderful’ Indian Act would probably be no different in essence than before.

Nadjnawan added as an example that the government had sold ninety islands of an Indian reserve for a pittance and had not told him about it until the transaction was completed.

Most participants seemed to agree that the attitude of the Canadian public toward the Indians’ socio-economic condition was one of disinterest. Boyd admitted that whites were biased and generally misinformed.

Peters was very concerned with racial bias. He maintained that the Indians were being treated as a non-personal group instead of as a living people who are good and bad, high and low.

STUDENTS BUG BUREAUCRATS

Peters found support for his views among the audience.

While Boyd said that he visited reserves on week-ends (he has seen all the Maritime ones, and many others in Ontario and Quebec) some students were annoyed that he did not stay longer on each reserve. Nadjnawan pointed to government bureaucracy and disinterest when he told of his being unable to get rid of a troublesome civil servant that was on the reserve.

Peters accused the government of permitting too little initiative within the civil service.

Fox, Director of the Information Branch of the department tried to counter the accusations. But he merely pointed out that some responsibility must rest with the government if only so that someone can take the blame. (777)

The statistics were given - low age of death, high infant mortality rate, disgraceful housing. One student related the disgusting poverty he saw at a settlement in Manitoba this summer and asked, “Is this Canada?”

Ernest McEwen, executive director of the IEA, criticized government bureaucratic hangups as impeding his plans for Indian community development. Clare Clark, former IEA President, criticized the government for up till now not publicizing the Indian situation better.

The government men agreed (sort of) but always, looked to the future for improvement.

While government men pointed out that fifth of Canada’s people are still poor (officially). The “just society”...oh boy...

Every citizen a reporter

For the first time this week, PRO TEM carries a report of the proceedings of a Glendon College Faculty Council.

Faculty council, by the way, is Glendon’s ministrature. Composed of over 70 faculty members, and 5 student representatives, is the highest authority on academic affairs at this institution.

John Bruckmann was correct when he said that faculty council was the real executive committee of the Senate. However, it is significant that the York University Senate has never yet refused to pass any “advice” it has received from the Glendon College Faculty Council.

Some months ago, after some bitter infighting, the student representatives convinced faculty council to allow a maximum of ten observers from the Glendon College community. Press coverage was not to be permitted, however.

It was indeed fortunate, then, that PRO TEM gained access to a number of exceptionally reliable sources as we feel that it will be to each Glendon student’s advantage to keep informed of the actions of this Glendon’s most important council.
...and make it better...

We are angry. Our anger and its casual frustration increases in direct proportion to the time we spend at Glendon College. In its classes and following its personnel development, like Glendon College. We used to recommend it to our friends. We no longer do. Now we tell people not to bother with universities.

Most of them are worse than Glendon, and Glendon is not as bad as they are. Perhaps the students are not sufficiently aware of the evolution of higher education, and how it is just beginning to feel the slow, tired bitterness which leads to destruction of ourselves and this so-called community.

We're tired of trying to work around our courses to find the subject interest. We're tired of attending boring and ineffective lectures which convey information we can find much better in books. We're tired of the under-stocked library and the carpets, the lack of such courses as one in eastern political development and its variously exotica.

We're very tired of progress towards democracy and de-structuralization, and through time begin to appear as linguistic concessions only. We're tired of digging through millions of words and socially set attitudes to find the people at this college.

We're tired of being afraid of the bogeymen who befall us from our rights as human beings and members of this community. We're tired of talking to our friends, colleagues and supposed representatives who subscribe to the theories of fear and hopelessness.

We are angry. Our anger and its casual frustration increases in direct proportion to the time we spend at Glendon College.

Graduates hear grishly truth

By RICHARD JACKSON - Special Correspondent, Ottawa Bureau Sudbury Star

Just as a change of pace while the world is considering "student power" and its variously exnteptive "protest" against society.

Not much of a pace-change in one way, either—nor with the campus in riot-run in Berkeley, Paris and Rome, damaged in New York, and prestige in question at Chicago, Berkeley and Burns.

But a terrific change of pace, actually, in an altogether different sense. It got to the point where one of our academics wondered, as he put it, was that "wrong" with Canadian universities that they, too, weren't in flaming revolts.

Well, there's nothing "wrong" in any sense. We got the Bishop's University where a fresh new breeze of thought blew across the campus the other graduation day.

Bishop's is an historic old campus, babyish with the weight of long academic accomplishment, in Laval, just outside of Sherbrooke where the green mountains of Vermont tumble across the border into Quebec's scenically lovely Eastern Townships.

Chancellor of Bishop's is Mr. Justice Douglas Charles Abbott of the Supreme Court of Canada, former federal finance minister.

No "JUNIOR LEAGUE" GATHERING

On the platform with him, among others, were Bank of Canada Governor Louise Rasminsky, U.S. Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney, Sun Life Vice-President Allen Oliver Mackay and Dr. Charles M. Taylor, Laval University Rector Magr. Louis-Albert Vachon. So it was no junior league convection.

At the podium was Dr. Jeffrey D. Jefferson, one of Canada's most respected educators.

He was there, it turned out to everyone's surprise — especially that of the 1,000 graduates — not to lecture, counsel, nor even inspire them to scale the world's mountains, but to extend what he said were his "deepest sympathies".

It saddened him to contemplate the "humiliation" they would suffer in their sudden work-a-day world transformation from the intellectual "center of student power activists" into — and what a ghastly prospect — "mere tax-paying citizens, ordinary human beings, commonplace Canadians".

He warned them that in their new, competitive lives, if members of the opposite sex showed up in their rooms after hours, nobody would worry.

If you post notices of protest, no one will read them.

"If your conversation and your writings are accompanied with four-letter words, people will think only that you are rude.

"If your dress and personal hygiene are that of a hippy, you will be regarded merely as foolishly unseemly and perhaps a threat to the community health."

"WILL LEARN HUMILITY"

The experience might be painful, difficult of coping, and for a time almost impossible of understanding, went on Dr. Jeffereis, but in the trying days ahead these new arrivals into the society so many of their student colleagues wish to destroy, despite themselves would "learn humility."

Bishop's, he reminded them gently, had shown them durings a "very valuable period" of their young lives.

It offered you instruction in the form of rather dull lectures. It has provided you with laboratories in which to perform authorized experiments. He continued, wryly.

"Bishop's existed long before you came to it, and incredible as it may sound to you, Bishop's will continue to exist long after you have left."

That was all. That was it. Three minutes as enlightening as probably any Canadian graduate class has experienced in this year of creeping anarchy.

Hoare wants Radio-Glendon

What is the answer to student protest, must the fighting, let's consider "student power" and its variously exolleptive "protest" against society.

It was written for the establishment of a closed circuit radio station in the present room in the base­

Graduates hear grishly truth

By RICHARD JACKSON - Special Correspondent, Ottawa Bureau Sudbury Star

Just as a change of pace while the world is considering "student power" and its variously exnteptive "protest" against society.

Not much of a pace-change in one way, either—nor with the campus in riot-run in Berkeley, Paris and Rome, damaged in New York, and prestige in question at Chicago, Berkeley and Burns.

But a terrific change of pace, actually, in an altogether different sense. It got to the point where one of our academics wondered, as he put it, was that "wrong" with Canadian universities that they, too, weren't in flaming revolts.

Well, there's nothing "wrong" in any sense. We got the Bishop's University where a fresh new breeze of thought blew across the campus the other graduation day.

Bishop's is an historic old campus, babyish with the weight of long academic accomplishment, in Laval, just outside of Sherbrooke where the green mountains of Vermont tumble across the border into Quebec's scenically lovely Eastern Townships.

Chancellor of Bishop's is Mr. Justice Douglas Charles Abbott of the Supreme Court of Canada, former federal finance minister.

No "JUNIOR LEAGUE" GATHERING

On the platform with him, among others, were Bank of Canada Governor Louise Rasminsky, U.S. Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney, Sun Life Vice-President Allen Oliver Mackay and Dr. Charles M. Taylor, Laval University Rector Magr. Louis-Albert Vachon. So it was no junior league convection.

At the podium was Dr. Jeffrey D. Jefferson, one of Canada's most respected educators.

He was there, it turned out to everyone's surprise — especially that of the 1,000 graduates — not to lecture, counsel, nor even inspire them to scale the world's mountains, but to extend what he said were his "deepest sympathies".

It saddened him to contemplate the "humiliation" they would suffer in their sudden work-a-day world transformation from the intellectual "center of student power activists" into — and what a ghastly prospect — "mere tax-paying citizens, ordinary human beings, commonplace Canadians".

He warned them that in their new, competitive lives, if members of the opposite sex showed up in their rooms after hours, nobody would worry.

If you post notices of protest, no one will read them.

"If your conversation and your writings are accompanied with four-letter words, people will think only that you are rude.

"If your dress and personal hygiene are that of a hippy, you will be regarded merely as foolishly unseemly and perhaps a threat to the community health."

"WILL LEARN HUMILITY"

The experience might be painful, difficult of coping, and for a time almost impossible of understanding, went on Dr. Jeffereis, but in the trying days ahead these new arrivals into the society so many of their student colleagues wish to destroy, despite themselves would "learn humility."

Bishop's, he reminded them gently, had shown them durings a "very valuable period" of their young lives.

It offered you instruction in the form of rather dull lectures. It has provided you with laboratories in which to perform authorized experiments. He continued, wryly.

"Bishop's existed long before you came to it, and incredible as it may sound to you, Bishop's will continue to exist long after you have left."

That was all. That was it. Three minutes as enlightening as probably any Canadian graduate class has experienced in this year of creeping anarchy.

Hoare wants Radio-Glendon

What is the answer to student protest, must the fighting, let's consider "student power" and its variously exolleptive "protest" against society.

It was written for the establishment of a closed circuit radio station in the present room in the base­

Graduates hear grishly truth

By RICHARD JACKSON - Special Correspondent, Ottawa Bureau Sudbury Star

Just as a change of pace while the world is considering "student power" and its variously exnteptive "protest" against society.

Not much of a pace-change in one way, either—nor with the campus in riot-run in Berkeley, Paris and Rome, damaged in New York, and prestige in question at Chicago, Berkeley and Burns.

But a terrific change of pace, actually, in an altogether different sense. It got to the point where one of our academics wondered, as he put it, was that "wrong" with Canadian universities that they, too, weren't in flaming revolts.

Well, there's nothing "wrong" in any sense. We got the Bishop's University where a fresh new breeze of thought blew across the campus the other graduation day.

Bishop's is an historic old campus, babyish with the weight of long academic accomplishment, in Laval, just outside of Sherbrooke where the green mountains of Vermont tumble across the border into Quebec's scenically lovely Eastern Townships.

Chancellor of Bishop's is Mr. Justice Douglas Charles Abbott of the Supreme Court of Canada, former federal finance minister.

No "JUNIOR LEAGUE" GATHERING

On the platform with him, among others, were Bank of Canada Governor Louise Rasminsky, U.S. Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney, Sun Life Vice-President Allen Oliver Mackay and Dr. Charles M. Taylor, Laval University Rector Magr. Louis-Albert Vachon. So it was no junior league convection.

At the podium was Dr. Jeffrey D. Jefferson, one of Canada's most respected educators.

He was there, it turned out to everyone's surprise — especially that of the 1,000 graduates — not to lecture, counsel, nor even inspire them to scale the world's mountains, but to extend what he said were his "deepest sympathies".

It saddened him to contemplate the "humiliation" they would suffer in their sudden work-a-day world transformation from the intellectual "center of student power activists" into — and what a ghastly prospect — "mere tax-paying citizens, ordinary human beings, commonplace Canadians".

He warned them that in their new, competitive lives, if members of the opposite sex showed up in their rooms after hours, nobody would worry.

If you post notices of protest, no one will read them.

"If your conversation and your writings are accompanied with four-letter words, people will think only that you are rude.

"If your dress and personal hygiene are that of a hippy, you will be regarded merely as foolishly unseemly and perhaps a threat to the community health."

"WILL LEARN HUMILITY"

The experience might be painful, difficult of coping, and for a time almost impossible of understanding, went on Dr. Jeffereis, but in the trying days ahead these new arrivals into the society so many of their student colleagues wish to destroy, despite themselves would "learn humility."

Bishop's, he reminded them gently, had shown them durings a "very valuable period" of their young lives.

It offered you instruction in the form of rather dull lectures. It has provided you with laboratories in which to perform authorized experiments. He continued, wryly.

"Bishop's existed long before you came to it, and incredible as it may sound to you, Bishop's will continue to exist long after you have left."

That was all. That was it. Three minutes as enlightening as probably any Canadian graduate class has experienced in this year of creeping anarchy.

Hoare wants Radio-Glendon

What is the answer to student protest, must the fighting, let's consider "student power" and its variously exolleptive "protest" against society.

It was written for the establishment of a closed circuit radio station in the present room in the base­
Vigneault : poète philosophe

byTRISH HARDIAN

Qui est-ce donc, ce Gilles Vigneault, dont l'âme est enflammée? Corps mince, tête dégi-chauve, bras toujours étendus...homme presque gauche sur une scène nue.

Et puis...sa voix, le vent de la mer, avec ses pieds et ses mains dansantes. Il nous parlait, nous charmant.

Il faisait pour nous, des types québécois: Berlioz, le voyageur, Zidore, le prospecteur...des types! Mais non! Des individus...car c'est toujours l'individu qui compte chez lui.

Tous ces gens, 'les gens de mon pays qui aiment causer' - ce sont les gens du Canada, le Canada lui-même.

Un pays à combattre. C'est l'huilie; c'est l'enfer.

'Un pays à crouler, à conserver'

'Mons pays, dit encore Vigneault.

'C'est une fente'

Gilles Vigneault

Fat Daddy's revenge

Your Fat Daddy bounced back into the city and after some frantic restaurateur- ing I've come up with a column. The name of the place is PIZZA AR ARADOISE. And you'll just love it at 376 Bloor St. W, at Spadina.

The whole thing is a front for a strip club and the Brick Dizzes -- and what deli-cacies -- and what prices! And what proportions!!!

Fat Daddy is, strickly speaking, a man of the middle and as useful much admires a curry which ignites his little mouth without proceeded to scorch his brain.

There are some very cool seafood platters, and very hot beef and chicken Madras curries. The desserts com-ishment the heat of the food with the sweetness of honey this is the part that I like -- tell it again FD! The consistency of the desert reminds me of the deep-fried chocolate ice cream over which I spent my slimmer days at the Pot-au-

Feu on Hayter St. (A Fat Daddy's recommendation).

Meanwhile, back at the Tanduri Specials, prepared only on 24 hour notice, small deposit required, for 3-4 ample people: Tanduri chicken $5.95, Murgh Musaulam $30 and Khurdi Chicken $60. Urd. (Oh Fat Daddy's Sorry mother). For those of you wishing to go in without twenty-four hours notice you can have a large meal for two at $5 or less.

everything included and this means advice from the owner who stands about 6'4. All the restaurant owners in this city are GIANTS says Mr 5x5 himself.

Dirty Pool: Winters College is making quite a name for itself but SEER doesn't seem to be printing half the panels. Seems the Rotary Act (DRUGS) was read to some students in residence by their dons who had in their possession a list of known campus addicts of whom students were warned to be ware. Reminds one of Scientology doesn't it. Elfato is wondering just who supplied the info for the list, on which, apparently, the name of at least one member of the Winters College Council appears.

Lynda's Dog Lady

By VIANEY CARRIERE

According to Lynda, I just had to meet the Dog Lady because I could get at least three columns out of her. And so, it is Saturday morning of Thanksgiving weekend, and Tom and Lynda and I are happily driving along somewhere between Clarkson and Simcoe, talking about the conversation of the night before with their parents, which somehow had centered about aunts and my hatred of fathers.

The Dog Lady lived just out of Simcoe, but first we had to go to the Norfolk County Fair, which is definitely maternal for a column. (I don't really hate fathers... they missed the whole point of the story.)

The Dog Lady according to Lynda, is a witch, and according to me, it takes one to know one. She lives in the country, on a very small farm, which is mostly taken up by dogs. So we drove a lot more of them. She was a bit barking, and a beautiful irate collie threw himself against a fence, thus causing Lynda to draw back slightly, despite her great love of dogs and rabbits. At this point, I had second thoughts the dog was about to go out by a frail young lady witch or no, I followed at a discreet distance. The Dog Lady emerged from a barn, naturally holding a dog, and approached us with a smile. She doesn't bark.

Nor does she look like a witch. Definitely too fat to fly brooms, she also wore bobbie pins in her hair which no self-respecting witch would do. Anyway, right Lynda?

I counted thirteen dogs before the Dog Lady dis-appareled into her house and emerged with four more. She was friendly. Lynda says that she liked us because she knew that we had a family and she didn't want to be outdone by a frail young lady witch or no, I followed at a discreet distance. The Dog Lady emerged from a barn, naturally holding a dog, and approached us with a smile. She doesn't bark.

So there they were, literally of all sizes and shapes, but not fat so much that she had to crouch over at 376 Bloor St. W, at Spadina.

She experimented with her dogs especially through crossbreeding, and apparently had been quite successful at getting on with good varieties. She had once crossed a cocker spaniel with a French poodle, giving, I suppose, a rather spunky dog. The male French poodle she used for those experiments was a story in himself. He had been born because the collie was absolutely vicious. But not to worry about.

On Monday, Tom and I drove out in the Caledon Hills, and I got my first-everletter out of Southern Ontario. It was Fall, and driving out there by the Credit River, I don't think either of us had a mind to worry about.

Well the old Dog Lady was wonderful, and I, rather think I fell in love with the lovely blond girl cradling her arms and grinning at Tom.
York 20 — Vic 6

Toronto’s winning U. does it once again!

BY NICK MARTIN

York Bulldogs came up with the best effort of their short careers last Friday, trouncing the much-vaunted Victoria College team 26-6. Larry Iaccino’s pinpoint passing combined with an impregnable defence to completely overpower the visitors.

Vic, winners of the U. T. Interfac championship for the last three years, expected to give York a much harder battle. The Vic team included several late cuts from the Blues, who soon found out that reputations alone won’t win on the football field.

All the scoring in the game came in the second half. In the first half, the teams sawed back and forth with York having a slight edge in play. Early in the third quarter, Iaccino rolled out and flipped a short pass to Shelly Pettie, who weaved his way 40 yards for the score.

SWEEP AND DIVE

Moments later, after a sweep by Dan Gryte had brought the ball to the Vic one yard line, Pettie dived over right tackle for his second touchdown. An attempted pass for a two point conversion failed. Steve Clark capped a great personal performance by scoring York’s final major conversion.

The old record of 19:100 Al Hamilton of C House took the winner in 17:08. Larry Iaccino’s Gord Krotz and Dan Clutterbuck of 2nd Year were eighth and ninth respectively. The race, 2nd Year picked up 30 points for a team in the Cup standings, moving into second place close behind C House.

The old record of 19:100 Al Hamilton of C House took the winner in 17:08. Larry Iaccino’s Gord Krotz and Dan Clutterbuck of 2nd Year were eighth and ninth respectively. The race, 2nd Year picked up 30 points for a team in the Cup standings, moving into second place close behind C House.

On October 7th, a game was protested, with A House complaining about slanted refereeing in their tilt with B House. The protest was successful, C House losing to the aging 3 and 4 boys, 18-7, with Rod Major getting two majors (one for TIME on play on words). What was to be the last of the year, depth and experience ran triumphantly.

Yes, it’s true. In October 9th, the froust, led by Matheson’s 24 points, beat D House 52-27. A slumping 2nd Year team lost to D 3-4, with the 29-21 score flattering the vanquished.

The next day a dilapidated band of tired-blood sophomores were trounced by a steady contingent from D House, with Ron Maitlin’s passing leading the way to a 32-7 win.

York’s only touchdown came with less than a minute to play. Second string York quarterback Wayne Clutter- buck had entered the game, and had immediately thrown a pass which was intercepted by Vic, Glennard’s Gord Way saved the momentum momentarily by picking off a Vic pass in the end zone, but Clutterbuck came straight out throwing again. His first pass was clipped and run back for a touchdown.

IMPROVED OFFENCE

York’s offence has improved vastly since the first game of the season, and can now no longer be considered a week sister to the defence. Iaccino, forced to scramble for his life earlier in the season, is now being afforded plenty of time to throw. He has responded to this with some superb play-calling, mixing short passes to Pettie, Miller, and Roy Hanna with an occasional bomb to Clark. The Bulldoggs have gotten good running performances out of Pettie and Miller.

York’s defence now has a shutout string of two games going. The last time they allowed a touchdown was in the fourth quarter of the Guelph game. Vic were unable to get a sustained drive going all day. Except for a few plays late in the game, Vic didn’t seriously threaten York’s goal line all day. Although they had the bigger line, Vic was unable to handle York’s tenacious defense. York’s defensive standouts once again were defensive back John Abbott, who made his third interception of the season and forced a fumble to break up two Vic scoring drives.

YORK TO LEAGUE

This victory should make all but certain York’s entry into the Central Canada Conference next year. Although only an Interfac team, Vic had been the pre-game favorites on the strength of their showings against other Interfac teams. The only possible argument that looms against our gaining admission is that it would put thirteen teams in a league that is now evenly balanced with six teams in two divisions. However, this is a minor problem which certainly shouldn’t keep the CCC from accepting a team as qualified as York.

York’s game is reportedly in Windsor this Saturday, who joined the CCC this season, have a record of 0 and 3, having lost to Laurentian, Guelph, and Waterloo Lutheran. Check with the athletic bulletin board for confirmation of this later in the week.

The old men humble the kids

BY LARRY SCANLAN

What a cakematch. Since our last report seven games have been played between our rugged intermural football squad and the University of Toronto’s. In that time, Victoria College has emerged as undisputed champions for the Grey Saucer and last year’s winner took a one game lead, we don’t have a team collage.

On October 2nd we had a slaughter and a squeaker. D House ran over B House 48-6 with Scott scoring two touchdowns, while 3 and 4 clipped the Axemen 24-19.